Thursday Is 'Flicker Day'

Goldstein Imports Noted Movies

By Peggy Hella

"The purpose of the audio-visual aid program is to enlarge the experiences of the student body beyond what they can get in the classroom through the medium of the movie," stated Dr. Harold Goldstein, director of the audio-visual aid program at UMD.

Dr. Goldstein hopes that these film experiences will enable the people who see them to become better-rounded individuals.

The 16 mm. documentary films used in the audio-visual aid program are educational and therefore employ different techniques than those used in Hollywood glamour films.

The audio-visual aid program is an extension of the convocation program.

Junior Class to Present Local Talent Convo

Talent from UMD and Duluth will comprise the junior class convo next Tuesday.

Don Cook, junior class president and chairman of the convo, will emcee the program.

Terry Evanson's seven-piece band will be featured with their selections of "Caravan", "Blue Moon", and a be-bop number. Evanson's band, comprised of UMD students, has been together for five years.

1950 Junior Prom Committee to Meet

The date will be set and a chairman chosen for the prom at a meeting of the prom committee Tuesday evening, Jan. 31 at Tweed, according to Junior class president, Don Cook.

The forty juniors who represent the class on this committee will discuss the possibility of arranging for a name band with the main campus.

Gus Jackson, Walter Maki and Ken Pofel will be rushed from the WEBC studio to appear in the convocation.

Gus Jackson is violinist of the Duluth Symphony orchestra, and Ken Pofel and Walter Maki

Darlene Mellinger, Kay McDonnell and Pat Grignon will be teamed in a dance act.

Science Aspirants Toughies

Students taking science courses are a hardy lot.

One must not only be scholastically inclined, but an innate perseverance and a dash of daring-do are necessitated to successfully attend classes at the science building. It constitutes a cross between a track man, Einstein and Admiral Byrd.

Dodging careening vehicles from Torrance hall to the science building sidewalk is merely a quiet prelude to battling the elements the remainder of the distance.

Although the daily treks are definitely character and body builders, the strain has taken its sad toll. Last quarter a reasonably cheerful and spirited chap was dismissed from Olcott at 12:50 and was expected to make a lecture on the third floor of the science building at one.

At the present date, this individual is a broken, decrepit ★ man, listless and lethargic, beaten by fickle fate.

Commendations should be afforded these students. They should be lauded as pioneers and awarded by their initiative. Perhaps a pertinent document attached to their personnel records would suffice.

"This is to certify that Dan'l Colomb Magellan has willfully and diligently braved hell and high water to regularly attend classes at this, the aforesigned institution."

'Union' Versus Lunchroom?

Washburn "union" at 3 in the afternoon is the most unsightly place on campus.

The Student council has tried several times to improve these conditions. Posters have been put up, student monitors have been hired, articles have been published by the STATESMAN — all to no avail.

A new attempt to improve conditions will be made shortly. The additional one dollar assessment added to the incidental fee will make a fund available, 25% of which the Student council is recommending for immediate improvement of union facilities.

The question is: Do we want a union or do we want a lunch room?

A separate union and a separate lunch room would do much to alleviate the congestion which is now the case every noon, as some students would be in the lunch room while others were in the union.

The union:

- Should have facilities which are "homey", pleasant, conducive to keeping clean.

- Should be cleaned twice or three times a day by hired student help.

- Should not be the place for eating bag lunches and drinking coffee.

The lunch room:

- Should be for the express purpose of eating bag lunches.

- Should be apart from the union.

- Should contain a coffee and milk bar.

See You in '99 . . . .

Our sister publication from the Minneapolis branch, "The Minnesota Daily" is celebrating its 50th birthday this year.

The "Daily" has the world's largest college circulation and according to the masthead, it is published "every morning during the college year except Sundays, Mondays, holidays and days following holidays."

In case you're around here in 1999, the STATESMAN will celebrate its 50th birthday as a weekly Oct. 7.

Sports Afield . . . .

"Winter Sports Night", usually sponsored by the WAA, will not be held this year unless some other organization sponsors it.

Maybe this year would be a good time to establish the tradition of having a "Snow Day" on one of our winter holidays, either Washington's or Lincoln's birthday.

Each year one of these ★ days is an official university holiday.

The Student council might be the logical organization to sponsor this event, since that group has control of the Social activities fund.

Bow-wow! . . . .

The noise and color you see in the cheering section at the BB games is provided by the Barkers club. Meetings are held every week in Washburn. The only prerequisite for membership is that you have vocal cords and are willing to use them. Of course, you've got to learn the yells, too.

Blizzard-Weary Students Get Unexpected Holiday

Last week — Tuesday evening, in the teeth of a blinding blizzard, groups of young people were huddled around radios.

Some of them even had books opened in front of them, proving they were UMD students.

All the ears were glued to the loudspeakers. (Le Page did a big business that day.) At the local pub, a sudden hush fell over the group gathered near the wireless.

The announcer said, "No school tomorrow at the following schools: Hermantown, Brookston, Esko, Clover Valley, Floodwood, Grand Marais——"

Groans began to mount in the cluster as more liquid quenched cold, but parched, throats.

Extra! Red Hot Mama Makes Fuel of Herself

By Herb Taylor

I had long felt that it was inevitable. Deep within me was a burning conviction that someday I would find her, my soul-mate, the one girl destined to be my partner through life. And then, with the suddenness of a thunder bolt it happened. I saw her, a slight, ethereal freshman co-ed coming toward me down the hall. I knew she was a freshman because she was hurrying to get to class on time. I knew she was a co-ed because my mother had told me about such things.

I stood transfixed, my head throbbing, cold chills coursing up and down my spine. I took an Anahist tablet and impulsively seized her sinewy arm as she rushed past.

"Forgive me," I said, my voice choked with emotion and mucous, "but, may I know your name?"

"Sure," she said, brushing back a dun-colored forelock, "I'm Eidelweiss Strictly from Hunger, Minnesota. Wanna rattle?"

"Please don't think me uncouth, Eidelweiss, but there is something I must tell you. This may be the turning point in our lives. Forget about your class, that's not important. Come down to the furnace room where we can enjoy a smoke.

Her limpid, dun-colored eye gave quiet consent. In a hoarse whisper that knocked a "no-smoking" sign off the wall she said: "Sure, big boy. This is bigger than both of us." Heading for the engine room, Eidelweiss' delicately played feet beat out a rhythmic staccato on the moribund floor timbers of Old Main.

After a breathless interval we stood at last before the battery of gigantic furnaces emanating cozy warmth to every nook and cranny of this noble edifice of higher learning. "Reminds me of the boiler room on the SS Saki," she said, and then, with the impetuosity of youth and ★ awakening love, she threw two passionate arms around my waist and tousled my hair with her free hand. I placed my lips against her dun-colored ear and whispered, "Darling, you're the only girl I know with three hands."

"I used to get time-and-a-half on the SS. Saki," she murmured. Then suddenly, like a startled wood-bird, she drew away from me and turned to the furnaces. "Say, these look like the ones we had on the Saki, automatic feed. Put the coals in this hopper, and you just pull this lever and

"Eidelweiss! Look out! The coal, Eidelweiss——"

Too late. I knelt silently beside the pile of coal from which protruded six tiny, delicate, dun-colored fingers. I kissed her knuckles, caloused from 18 years of dragging on the floor, and lay sobbing against the coal heap.

That is my story. Sadly I shoveled Eidelweiss into the hopper and turned on the draft. Oh, Eidelweiss! Would that I too were immolated in that Promethean heat. Would that our ashes might together float high, out, out, over the training school.

The announcer continued, "——Carlton and Cotton. The public schools in Duluth will be closed tomorrow."

A cheer and a, "Set 'em up for the boys," rose from a bespectacled young man nearest the radio.

He was evidently practice-teaching at Denfeld.

But the news they were all waiting for did not come that evening.

Early in the morning, black coffee was keeping the boys alive. After the tenth pot, and a horrible night at the radio, the announcement finally came, "Dr. Raymond Gibson announces that UMD will be closed today."

Many bedsprings creaked as hundreds of sleepy, but happy students jumped back in for a few more hours of sack-time.

Poll Facts

"What is the biggest improvement, if any, that could be made in Washburn?" was the question asked in this week's STATESMAN "Poll Facts".

Approximately three out of four people mentioned one of the following answers:

- More room.
- More comfortable chairs.
- Ventilation, redecoration and return of the furnishings that were formerly in the Bohannon room.

In this survey, as in last week's survey, 189 students were sampled with a cross-section of 10% being taken of the men and women of each class.

Duluth Blizzard Reminiscent of Alaskan Spring

Explorer Describes Arctic

By Joy Ganyo

"I don't know what to say about Duluth weather. It reminds me of spring in the Arctic," remarked Harmon Helmericks, a modern Alaskan pioneer, as he spoke on his life in the Arctic at convocation Tuesday.

Mrs. Helmericks was unable to be present because of an impending visit from the stork.

Helmericks' lecture supplemented the showing of colored movies of Alaskan life and scenery. Some unusual shots of an Arctic sunset were shown.

Four UMD co-eds, Ione Newman, Joyce Lewandowski, Joan Urlick and Muriel Harper, modeled examples of Eskimo clothing. Helmericks gave the Eskimos credit for teaching him most of what he knows about the Arctic.

One of the interesting facts he told about Alaska was that the mosquitos are a blessing in disguise, because they are a large item in the diet of the bird and fish life.

The Helmericks, veterans of 2,000 hours of Arctic flying, plan to return to their Alaska home as soon as possible.

The remaining winter quarter list of films is as follows:

Feb. 2—"Does It Matter What You Think?" and "Valley of the Tennessee."

Feb. 9—"Fiddle Dee Dee," "Journey Into Medicine" and "Myra Hess," British pianist.

Feb. 16—"Steps of the Ballet," the Sadler Wells Ballet and Robert Helpmann, star of "Red Shoes"; "Colour in Clay" and "One World or None," the A-bomb.

Feb. 23—"Spelunking" and a short version of the opera "Carmen" with Chloe Elmo and Teto Gobbi of the Metropolitan.

A new slate of WAA officers was formed at the Jan. 12 meeting. Elected were Eva Mae Bloomgren, president; Miriam Murray, vice-president; Jeanne Peterson, secretary; Joann Johnson, treasurer; Ruth Clement, member-at-large; Dorothy Peterson, student council representative, and point recorder, Ella Johnston. # BULLDOGS ENTERTAIN HAMLINE

LOCKER-ROOM CHATTER

by DAVE DYE

Tomorrow night the mighty Pipers of Hamline invade the Armory to give battle to the Bulldogs of UMD. The Hutton-coached quintet enters the contest the favorite on the strength of its conference record which lists four wins and no defeats. On the other hand, UMD has notched one victory while losing three games. On paper it looks like an easy win for the St. Paul school.

But look at it in a different light. In the first place, the game is a home contest for the Bulldogs. That fact must be considered as an advantage for the Isenbargermen. As for the record, we can point to two extremely close losses and a defeat on the road.

UMD Better than Record

With a little good luck instead of the bad fortunes that the locals have encountered, this could have been a contest between two teams each sporting a 4-0 record in conference play. We say this in the face of an 11-point defeat at the hands of the Tommies. Except for opening quarter jitters, the Bulldogs played the Tommies on more than even terms. In the last three quarters, the Maroon and Gold outscored St. Thomas, 44-39.

One of these days, Dame Fortune is going to smile at Coach Ray Isenbarger and his charges. We hope it is tomorrow night, and while we won't predict the winner, we will say that the contest could produce some very thrilling moments, and that it will be well worth attending.

Very Good Sextet

Maybe some of you readers aren't aware of the fact, but UMD has a first-rate hockey team this season. Coach Hank Jensen has molded a formidable outfit which improves with every outing.

The sextet takes on the Hamline pucksters tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 out at Ordean field. For really fine entertainment and fast action, why not drop out there tomorrow?

Three Teams Pace IM Basketball

The boys' intramural basketball schedule will enter its fourth week on Monday with several definite contenders shaping up as strong favorites for the trophy.

Ward Wells, director, states, "Vesel's Weasels," East Rangers and DeMolay Five are beginning to look like the class in their respective leagues."

Contests are played in the gym on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons as well as Tuesday evenings.

Isenbarger

Future Frays

In addition to the Hamline game, the Bulldogs tackle two more opponents at home next week. St. John's will invade the Armory on Monday night, while the Superior State Yellowjackets challenge the Maroon and Gold in a non-conference game on Thursday. Both contests will begin at 8 p. m.

Pipers Present Powerhouse Looking for Fifth Victory

The UMD Bulldogs entertain their most formidable foe of the season in the Armory tomorrow night as the Hamline Pipers try for their fifth consecutive conference victory of the season. All reserved seat tickets have been sold for the contest, which begins at 8.

The Pipers, coached by Joe Hutton, are led by All-American forward, Hal Haskins, who is rapidly becoming one of the most talked-about college players in the country. "Sleepy Hal" is approaching the 2,000-point mark as his output in collegiate basketball.

Joe Hutton, Jr. is another Piper ace. The coach's son is a versatile, high-scoring guard. Jim Fritsche, all-state center from St. Paul Humboldt throws his 6 foot, 6 inch frame around the pivot slot, and is scoring consistently from all angles. Kermit Englehart is the other guard, while Bob Lundsten cavorts opposite Haskins on the front line.

Auggies Dump UMD With Late Spurt

The Maroon and Gold dropped their second consecutive home game by the score of 60-59 as the Augsburg cagers rallied in the last two minutes to cop the victory.

The locals led all the way until the last minute when Don Reimer's bucket put the Auggies in the lead. Rudy Monson tied the score at 59-all with a gift toss. Laurie Balzer iced a free throw for the victory.

Rudy Monson led the losers with a 24 point output while Ed Westerhaus and Rudy Brandstrom each contributed 10 markers. Ernie Hone paced the visitors with 16 points.

last few games, and may see considerable action at a forward position.

The contest is expected to develop into a scoring duel between Haskins and Fritsche for the Pipers and Monson and Norlander for the Bulldogs.

There will be a preliminary contest between the UMD jayvee squad and the Two Harbors Moose. The tip-off for this contest will be 6:30.

UMD Skiers Win Central U. S. Inter-Collegiate Meet

By Ron Kramnic

Last Saturday at the Mont du Lac Ski center the UMD ski team copped first place honors in the Central U. S. Inter-collegiate Downhill-Slalom championships.

With perfect snow conditions on the newly opened slope, the UMD squad, paced by Ivan Iverson and Mark Magney, breezed into the top spot with Michigan Tech of Houghton right on their tails.

Iverson led the UMD squad with a first place win in the downhill race with a 30.7 seconds time and a third place in the slalom, while his teammate, Magney, clinched second place in the slalom. The top performance of the day, however, was turned in by Gene Knaebel of Michigan Tech with his record-breaking time of 49.3 in the slalom.

Competing in the meet besides UMD and Michigan Tech were Michigan Tech team No. 2, the University of Wisconsin, Carleton College, Michigan Tech team No. 3, the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, and Stout Institute. These teams finished in the preceding order behind UMD and Michigan Tech.

The Bulldog hickory-men will compete at the MIAC championship event at St. Olaf on Feb. 7. They are expected to be a distinct threat for the title.

DICK LUNDQUIST of UMD and Ernie Hone of the Auggies reach for a rebound as Rudy Brandstrom of the locals and Laurie Balzer and Roger Beaman look on.

Bulldog Sextet Meets Pipers After Routing Auggies 6-1

Coach Hank Jensen sends his Bulldog sextet in quest of its third victory tomorrow afternoon at Ordean field. The opposition will be furnished by the strong Hamline pucksters. Game time is 2:30.

The Bulldogs feature a fast-skating, aggressive style of play. Two forward lines skate for the locals, with Wally Heikkinen, Ernie Mustonen and Dick Bellamy on one line and George Sachen, Bob Boyat and Gordy Seitz on the other.

Pep Sieger, Jim Krysiak, and Chuck Sundeen are the defense men, while Lyle Aho and Dave Wilson are spare wings. Norm Thompson ably provides the net-tending chores for the Green and Gold-clad Bulldogs.

Last Saturday, the Bulldogs dumped the Auggies, 6-1, as four players figured in the scoring with Sachen and Bellamy each counting twice.
